

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A source based scheme to establish communication paths in an optical network. According to one embodiment of the invention, a number of wavelength division multiplexing access nodes of an optical network employ a source based scheme to establish communication paths. Each of these access nodes stores a set of one or more network topology databases based on a set of one or more connectivity constraints.